To Whom it May Concern,

I am honored and humbled to lead one of the most successful K-12 public school districts in the country. The high levels of rigor matched with a healthy culture that values the unique differences in each child has earned Arcadia Unified School District a reputation of excellence. I strive to maintain that excellence while adapting to the quickly changing landscape of public education. This involves consistent monitoring and evaluation of all our programs to ensure our resources are laser-focused on our core mission of teaching and learning. If there is a supplemental program that does not meet the high expectations of our community, we simply find a partner that shares our vision and can deliver a world-class program that enhances our core mission. Our reputation depends on it!

After a national search for an extended day program on our campuses, we found Right At School (RAS) to be a perfect match and a valued partner. Cindy Lawson was my first contact with RAS and it was clear she was as passionate about extended day programs as I am about the schoolday. We shared a commitment to educating the whole child through project-based learning that is engaging and fun for students and staff. Cindy and her team are as collaborative and responsive today, three years later, as the first day we implemented RAS on our campuses. The extended day programs have been a huge success and offer our students an opportunity to enhance their schoolday in a safe and supportive environment not to mention the revenue sharing that has directly benefited each of our campuses. A mom recently stopped me at an open house and said, "I don't know how you found RAS but my child doesn't want to come home in the evening."

In addition to my role as superintendent, I am also a father of 6-year-old twins that attend Arcadia schools. My start time getting out of the house in the morning continues to get earlier and earlier as my twins beg to get to RAS in time to check in with their RAS teachers and spend time with their multi-grade friends. After school, my kids are involved in multiple electives like Fencing, Kung Fu, Hip Hop Dance, and chess without ever leaving their school.

I have the opportunity to work with many partners in education and can say with all the confidence in the world that Right at School is a leader in the extended schoolday space. Our school board is thrilled with the partnership and continued enrollment growth each year. They are happy with RAS because our students and parents are happy with the world-class service they are getting when the schoolday ends. If you have any questions or would like further information, please do not hesitate to call me on my cell at 626-255-0615.
